History

Knowledge	Stories, pictures and role play are used to help people learn about the past, understand key events and empathise with historical figures.	Historical information can be presented in a variety of ways. For example, in a non-chronological report, information about a historical topic is presented without organising it into chronological order	Historical information can be presented as a narrative, non-chronological report, fact file, timeline, description, reconstruction or presentation.	Relevant historical information can be presented as written texts, tables, diagrams, captions and lists.	Sources of historical information can have varying degrees of accuracy, depending on who wrote them, when they were written and the perspective of the writer.	Sources of historical information should be read critically to prove or disprove a historically valid idea by setting the report into the historical context in which it was written, understanding the background and ideologies of the writer or creator and knowing if the source was written at the time of the event (primary evidence) or after the event (secondary evidence).
